Overview

Since the late 1940s, the Atlanta Regional Commission and its predecessor agencies have brought together the region's leaders to plan for the future and act on shared opportunities and challenges.

In 1947, the Metropolitan Planning Commission (MPC) was created and became the first publicly funded multi-county planning agency in the U.S. Member governments included DeKalb and Fulton Counties, and the City of Atlanta.

In 1971, the State Legislature authorized creation of a Metropolitan Area Planning and Development Commission (MAPDC) (such legislative act hereinafter referred to as “the ARC Law”) (O.C.G.A. §§ 50-8-80, et seq.) with the responsibilities of a Regional Commission (the legislative act creating such hereinafter referred to as “the Regional Commissions Law”) (O.C.G.A. §§ 50-8-30, et seq.) and in late 1971, the Atlanta Regional Commission was created as Georgia's sole MAPDC.

Established by local governments of the Atlanta region, the Atlanta Regional Commission currently encompasses a 10-county area (the counties of Cherokee, Clayton, Cobb, DeKalb, Douglas, Fayette, Fulton, Gwinnett, Henry and Rockdale, and all their municipalities including the City of Atlanta). ARC is funded through a number of sources from local, state, and federal governments.

ARC is dedicated to assisting local governments in creating a superior living environment for all residents of the Atlanta region. This is accomplished through focused collaborations, utilizing professional planning initiatives, social work services, research, and analytical techniques to provide objective information, and the pursuit of innovative financing opportunities.

ARC is committed to the principle of inclusiveness and shall not discriminate against otherwise qualified persons on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, genetics, physical or mental handicap or disability in its recruitment, employment, facility and program accessibility or services.
